Quarterly report

Summary of the year

Plain text with bold, italic, underlined, ~~struck~~, red and highlighted words, x^2 and H_2O.

A centered line.

A line on the right.

This paragraph is justified and long enough to wrap across several lines, so the space between its words stretches on every line but the last one, which is how justified text shows itself.

```
Courier New line.
```

Times New Roman in blue at fourteen points.

Calibri line.

An indented paragraph.

A first-line indent: this paragraph is long enough to wrap onto a second line, which starts at the margin again.

Double spaced: this paragraph is long enough to wrap onto a second and a third line, so its line pitch can be measured from the lines it has, as the pitch of any paragraph can be, however wide its spacing is.
